Together

Faith is a noun and Believe is a verb. Faith is the acceptance of Jesus as the incarnate Christ. Everything we do as Christians is the result of our obedience to the directions of Jesus as Christ. Every thing is a consequence of our doing what Jesus as Christ has told us to do. Our lives are changed by our faith, being Believers means we are different in motivation and purpose.

Sadly, some claim to have faith, but they are not believers. They do little to nothing that demonstrates they follow Jesus Christ. They mouth some words, point to a time when they “did” a thing, but on a daily basis they exhibit little in their lives that shows they are disciples.

Faith is foundational. It is the cement that holds to the foundation of truth which Peter confessed, when he said, You are the Christ, the Son of the living God. The church was not built on Peter and the church was not built on the confession of Peter. The church was built on the truth that Peter confessed.

Our confession or acceptance of this truth is not a one time thing before a group of smiling and loving believers. It is a lifetime confession before evil, who wish us harm because they do not want the goodness and morality of God. Their goal is the indulgence of fleshly appetites and power to control others for their own gain.

Those who live according to the sinful nature have their minds set on what that nature desires; but those who live in accordance with the Spirit have their minds set on what the Spirit desires.

Rom 8:5.

Love Those Dogs

The parents of an eight-year-old were having a tough time with their son going off to summer camp. They had never been away from each other for a whole week.

After they hadn't heard from him in several days, they called the camp to see if he was all right. The parents were disappointed to learn that he had not missed them.

Prying for some more reassuring information, his mom and dad asked, “Have any of the other children gotten homesick?”

The boy said, “Only the ones who have dogs.”

A Home Is...

A house with love inside.

Four walls glued together with the magic paste of tears and laughter, sorrows and joys and dreams.

A sanctuary, a friendly port for the lonely, a beacon for the wanderer.

Built with bricks and mortar and lumber and nails and concrete...and devotion and love and courtesy and courage.

As warm as the glow of a fire in the fireplace... as serene as a cat napping in the sun on a window sill.

A front door that has known many a happy greeting and a lot of sad farewells.

A nursery that has known a child's cry in the night...and a parlor that had heard a lover's sigh.

A boy's bedroom with pennants and posters on the wall, a ball glove in the corner, and music turned up loud.

A happy den full of talk and laughter, a kitchen where Thanksgiving feasts have been prepared, and a living room where games have been watched.

A bookcase filled with strange and wonderful tales, a carpet worn with the scuffle of little shoes, a lawn that has known bare feet in a summer sprinkle.

A home is many things...but most of all, a home is a house held together by a family's love.—
