Together

The Old Testament Psalms are a collection of poems or hymns written mostly by David, but Solomon and others also. The messages are from the deep emotions of a person that is in a special time in life. A Psalm may be at a time when the writer is struggling with a hard temptation, or feels as if they are about to be overcome by their enemies or is especially grateful for the blessing and protection God has given. A Psalm may reveal a struggle for faith or it may speak of an almost absolute confidence in God. A Psalm may sound out of date, another may sound as if it was written for you at this moment very time.

The most familiar Psalm for today's reader is probably the 23rd. It has been used at many funerals and children are often taught to memorize it. The Psalm is not about death or dying. It is about those hard times when we are surrounded by difficulty and it seems we will not be victorious. It seems to me to have been written either before or after a tough time for the psalmist. It is a restatement of faith and commitment. The writer is saying, I can do this because God is on my side.

Psalm 122 begins with "I rejoiced with those who said to me, 'Let us go to the house of the LORD.'" A recognition of the desire to worship and serve YHWH.

When the modern day disciple of Jesus assembles to worship our Lord God, we are happy and when we see others who have also come to worship, we rejoice. It is a time when we are encouraged and we encourage others. "Let us go to the house of the Lord."

This is what the apostle Paul was inferring when he wrote "Let us not give up meeting together...but let us encourage one another." The highlight of our week should be the first day of the week. The day we meet to worship and rejoice in the salvation we have in Jesus. It is also the day we see others who love God and profess their faith by how they live every day of their life.

We are not alone in the troubles of life. Our loving God and Savior is with us and your fellow believers are with you. Do not think you are alone. As we pray to God with our troubles, we must also let our fellow Christians know that we need help. We are in the service of Jesus — Together.
